Fire Weather

Texas A & M Forestry service yesterday shared that as the triple digit temperatures returned this week, surface fuels have been drying. The heat combined with mostly sunny skies will increase fire ignition potential, especially during the afternoon hours.

The fire environment will support wildfire activity in Central Texas, as well as Southeast Texas, and Upper Gulf Coast. Dry surface fuel may continue to support moderate wildfire activity on Saturday and Sunday across these areas.

Speaking with Kempner Volunteer Fire Department Chief Connie Green this morning, Lampasas Radio confirmed that yesterday there were 3 minor flare-ups from the 190/Jackrabbit fire of the previous day. Chief Green stresses that if you don't have to burn then don't burn. If you have to, to please take precautions such as making sure the area around where you are going to burn is clear, wetting the area around where you will be burning, keeping a water hose nearby, and being aware that any spark can start a fire easily with the dry conditions. She also advises residents to be aware that farm or yard equipment or even trailers with chains can cause sparks. With high temperatures over 100° each day, low humidity, and winds gusting over 20 mph things can get out of hand quickly, and the grasses and fuel for fires are only going to be drying out more each day.

Llano County Moore Peak Fire

Emergency officials in Llano County are working to contain a brush fire that has burned around 500 acres of land near East State Highway 71 and Llano County Road 307 (Slab Road) that was sparked by an excavator.

Texas A&M Forestry shows that last night at 11:50pm, the fire was approximately 500 acres, 40% contained, and, according to updated information from kxan.com, 12 structures are threatened. There are over 20 agencies responding, including 13 volunteer fire departments and the Texas Forestry Service is providing air support.

Local FFA Students Excel at the Texas FFA Convention

Congratulations to Lampasas FFA members who walked the stage of champions today at Texas FFA Convention.

The Agriculture Communications team of Paige Rutland, Jacie Resa, and manager Daecee Ellis (pictured right; not pictured Morgan Bobo and Avery Hopson) received their state champion trophy. Phoebe Rounds, who advanced to finals in Extemporaneous Public Speaking, placed 8th in the STATE!!

Also, Congratulations to all of the Lampasas High School Lonestar Award Recipients! According to Doc Forsythe, The Lone Star FFA degree is the highest award a Texas Agriculture Science or FFA student can earn and receive from the Texas FFA State Association! This award is based on a combination of documented leadership activities, community service hours, career development events, and their supervised agricultural experience projects, such as livestock projects, horticulture, ag mechanics etc.

The Lampasas FFA members who received their Lonestar Degrees are Allyson Baker, Emily Brister, Daecee Ellis, Avery Hopson, Saige Koger, Jaycee Lockhart, Neely Miller, Zechariah Randall and Aubrey Tower.
